IP6 for Cancer

By Jan Wade

This is a comprehensive little book about a supplement that most people do not no about. My son in law took it for cancer, and raised his blood count faster than the doctor had ever seen.

The Newest Weapon

By Martin Asiner

In IP6, NATURE'S REVOLUTIONARY CANCER-FIGHTER, Dr. Shamsuddin presents the results of his years of research into what he terms as a potent anti-cancer supplement. Dr. Shamsuddin is more suited as a researcher than a writer as he uses a prose style that suggests his target audience is for readers much like himself. Still, for those laymen with the patience to plow through his fondness for a density of arcane prose, the results are well worth it. His research shows that a little-known component of plants called IP6 has a staggering impact on the reduction of a variety of cancers that currently plague human beings. When IP6 is combined with another common substance called inositol, the combined impact is collectively greater than either alone. This news has profound implications for those who currently have cancer and for those who do not but wish to avoid it. He adds that the potential downside is virtually nil. Therefore, IP6 ought to occupy a prominent place on any anti-cancer regimen. One ought not to assume, however, that regardless of the promise of this newest wonder drug, that other and equally potent approaches can be discarded. If one combines IP6 with, say AHCC, in conjunction with a generally organic and toxic-free diet, then the scourge that we call cancer might become a thing of the past.
